Dear Madam:

Your letter to the New York Public
Library has been turned over to us for reply.

With the exception of the gold dollar which is worth about two dollars, none of your other coins are worth more than their silver value, or from half a cent to two or three cents for your copper.

If you desire to dispose of these, we would advise you to write to Rudolph Kohler, 70 Fifth Avenue, New York.

Very truly yours,

Curator
